PARENTAL EDUCATION
AND AUGMENTED REALITY
TO PREVENT BULLYING AMONG CHILDREN

How parents & educators reacted to the Like Father Like Son AR game

1 THE TRAINING

In early June, during a week-long training in Monza, Italy, the "Like Father Like Son Augmented Reality Game" was introduced to a group of 13 parents and educators from Italy, Spain, Greece, Cyprus, and Croatia. The goal? Equip participants with tools to combat bullying using innovative technology.

2 PARTICIPANTS' FEEDBACK

Positive Impact: Participants praised the training as "well-organised, very useful, and pleasant," fostering a sense of unity and purpose.

Universal Relevance: Participants found it "very useful and relevant for everyone," transcending borders and backgrounds.

Team Spirit: Active engagement, story-sharing, and a sense of teamwork defined the training, described as "awesome work by everyone!"

3 KEY INSIGHTS

Love and Empathy: The training emphasized love and empathy's importance in parenting and education, reminding us that the heart plays a crucial role in nurturing a compassionate future.

Tools for Change: Participants eagerly embraced insights and tools, anticipating the forthcoming piloting phase in September. The "Like Father Like Son Augmented Reality Game" promises to revolutionize bullying prevention.
